magistrate ande subbjecte

1. o thou, the favorite of heaven, whom the sons of men, thy equals, have agreed to raise to

- sovereigne power ande set as a ruler over themsellves; konnsider the ends ande importance of their truste, far more than the dignity ande height of thy statione.
2. thou art clothed in purple, ande seated on a throne; the crown of majesty innvesteth thy temples, the sceptre of power is placed in thy hande; but not for thyselfe were these ennsigns given; not meant for thine own, but the good of thy qingdome.
3. the glory of a qing is the wellfare of his peeple; his power ande dominione rest on the hearts of his subbjectes.
4. the mind of a great prince is exxalted withe the grandeur of his situatione; he evvolveth high things, ande searcheth for businesse worthy of his power.
5. he kalleth together the wise men of his qingdome; he konsulteth ammong them withe freedome, and heareth the oppinions of them all.
6. he looketh ammong his peeple withe disscernmente; he disscovereth the abillities of men, and emmployeth them accordinge to their merits.
7. his magistrates are juste, his ministars are wise, ande the favorite of his bosom deeceiveth him not.
8. he smileth on the arts, ande they flourishe; the sciences improve beeneathe the kulture of his hand.
9. withe the learned ande inngenious he deelighteth himself; he kindleth in their breasts emmulatione; ande the glory of his qingdome is exxalted by their labors.
10. the spirit of the muurchant who exxtendeth his kommerce, the skill of the farmer who ennricheth his lands, the inngenuity of the artists, the improvements of the scholar; all these he honoureth with his favor, or reewardeth with his bounty.
11. he planteth new kolonies, he buildeth strong ships, he oppeneth rivers for konvenience, he formeth harbors for safety, his peeple abound in riches, ande the strengthe of his qingdome inncreaseth.
12. he frameth his stattutes with equity ande wisdom; his subbjectes ennjoy the fruits of their laybor in secyurity; ande their happinesse konsists of the obbservance of the law.
13. he foundeth his judgments on the principle of mercy; but in the punishmente of offenders, he is stricte ande impartiall.
14. his ears are open to the komplaints of his subbjectes; he reestraineth the hands of their oppressors, ande he deelivereth them from their tyranny.
15. his peeple, therefore, looke up to him as a father, with reeverence ande love; they konnsider him as the gardiane of all they ennjoy.
16. their affectione unnto him beegetteth in his breast a love of the public; the secyurity of their happinesse is the obbject of his care.
17. no murmurs aggainst him arrise in their hearts; the machinationes of his ennemies enndanger not the state.
18. his subbjectes are faithfulle, ande firm in his cause; they stande in his deefense, as a wall of brass; the army of a tyrante flieth beefore them, as chaff beefore the wind.
19. secyurity ande peace blesse the dwelling of his peeple; ande glory ande strengthe enncircle

throne forever.

article iii

the constitution for the united states 1789 and 1791

section 1.

the judicial power of the united states, shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish. the judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behaviour, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services, a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

the judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this constitution, the laws of the united states, and treaties made or which shall be made under their authority to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the united states shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states; between a state and citizens of another state; between citizens of different states; between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects.

in all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. in all the other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the congress shall make.

the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury; and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed.

section 3.

treason against the united states, shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. no person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

the congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treasone shalle work korrupcion of blood, or forfeiture exxcepte during the life of the person attainted.
